My name is Alexandre, I'm 35 years old and I live in São Paulo.

I have knowledge in the areas of business intelligence, analytics, finance and public bidding. I consider myself as an analytical profile, specialized in data analysis, mapping, transformation, optimization and automation of processes. I also have experience in leadership and management of people.

I have a degree in business administration and I also have an MBA in sales management and now I am studying a postgraduate degree in business intelligence and analytics.

I started my career as a telemarketing attendant in a company called Contax when I got my first experience with customers service, I've worked there for about one and a half year and I've got my first promotion for a backoffice position, there I had a bigger autonomy to solve the client's problems and got more administrative processes experience.

I decided to change my career for another field, so I began an internship in commercial area of a telecommunication company called Nesic, and then I improved my skills in customer service, I've got a lot of experience in Microsoft Excel and how to make a commercial proposal. Because of that experience I had another opportunity to work in my next job.

When I started working in the company called Orion, I had my first touch with public biddings and there I learned a lot about this field. Because of my performance after six months I've got a promotion for a analyst position and I worked for four years.

After that I've got an opportunity to a manager position in the financial department and that was my first opportunity to restructuring a whole department and its processes and when I've got all my skills about finance procedures like invoice, taxes, bills to pay, bills to receive and etc.
